GERMAN SHIPS BAR THE BRITISH COAST

First Hostile Shots Since John Paul Jones' Raid More Than 100 Years Ago

(SPECIAL CABLE MESSAGE TO THE SUNDAY AMERICAN BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE)

BERLIN, via Amsterdam, Nov. 7.—The following official announcement was given out by the Admiralty this afternoon:

"On November 3 three German cruisers attacked the British coast at Yarmouth and shelled the fortifications, together with some small craft in the harbor.

"It is reported that the British submarine D-5 has been sunk."

(It had been reported previously that shells were dropped within a mile off shore at Yarmouth, but it was not known that the Germans were making an actual attack upon the land works. This being the case, it was the first assault against coast forts on British soil for more than a century.)

MR. DUDLEY ARRESTED FOR GIRL'S DEATH

Young Physician Now Accused of Murder in Case of Mildred Sullivan, "Belle of Aroostook County," Missing for Two Months

The mystery of the case of Mildred Sullivan, known as the "prettiest girl in Aroostook County," took a new and unexpected turn yesterday, when at Houlton, Me., Dr. Lionel E. Dudley was placed under arrest by the Aroostook authorities, charged with the murder of the girl.

At a late hour last night, County Attorney Archibald refused to comment on the case, stating, however, that further developments might be announced at any time.

Dr. Dudley was one of the four persons arrested in Houlton five weeks ago as a result of the sudden disappearance and supposed death of the Sullivan girl. His arrest on the murder charge is the most startling development in the case since the young physician was taken back to Houlton for trial.

Dr. Dudley had been out on $4,000 bonds after being held by the Aroostook court for the November Grand Jury, the charge being illegal surgery.

Friday night Dudley went from his home at Presque Isle to Houlton to consult with his counsel. He spent the night at a hotel, and yesterday was taken into custody by Sheriff Heyson and Deputy Sheriff Laffin. Mildred Sullivan was seventeen and she had been missing since September 4. On September 1 she went to Presque Isle to attend a fair in that town. At the depot she was met by Ambrose Bridge, who is said to have been her sweetheart, and Miss Kate Michaud, a nurse.

The police say the girl was induced to stay with Miss Michaud at the home of a Mrs. Southard; that on September 3 Mildred and Miss Michaud went to the village and that at midnight Mildred was brought back very ill in an automobile, alleged to have been driven by Dr. Dudley.

LONG SEARCH FAILED.
It was the prosecution's claim that the girl's body had been smothered with a wide-eyed search was made. Woods and fields were gone over, ponds were dragged, but without result.

Dr. Dudley and the Misses Kate and Alice Pettit were arrested in Boston October 27 by the police of that city. Dead End street station. All three were booked on a statutory charge. The next day Miss Michaud was arrested. All four were turned over to the Maine authorities.

In the Houlton court on October 6 Miss Michaud was held in $4,000 for the Grand Jury. Alice Pettit was held in $2,500 on a charge of being an accessory after the fact, and her sister Kate was discharged.

Kaiser's Brunswick Lion at Harvard Target for Eggs

Harvard's Brunswick lion, the gift of Kaiser Wilhelm, was "egged" by persons unknown some time Friday night, and yesterday to the amusement of students and pedestrians generally on the side of the rampart Imperial lion was all around egged.

The lion was presented to Harvard a year ago by the Kaiser as a token of his esteem and appreciation of the Harvard German Museum activities. It is a replica of the famous Brunswick lion. The statue was placed on a granite plot at the junction of Broadway and Cambridge street, facing Harvard square.

On its right side, so that he who may read, is an inscription in English.

On the lion's left side is an inscription in German.

Whoever threw the eggs against the left side of the egg-shelling.

Governor Renews
His Holy Cross Days

WORCESTER, Nov. 7.—Governor Walsh was an unexpected visitor at Holy Cross College, of which he is a graduate, when he dropped around to consult with the college faculty. Just to celebrate his re-election the students were given a holiday in the Governor's honor, and many a cheer rent the air when Governor Walsh was tendered an informal reception by the student body.

37,000 German Dead
Buried by Belgians

LONDON, Nov. 7.—The Daily Mail's Belgian correspondent asserts that, after the defeat of the Germans in Belgium, the Belgians had sent out four burying parties, numbering altogether 4,000 men, to bury the German dead, which they estimated at 37,000.

BIG SEIZURE OF SHORT-WEIGHT MARKET SCALES

Launch State-Wide Campaign to Protect the Poor from Unscrupulous Men.

SOME MUST GO TO COURT

Three Hanson, State Commissioner of Weights and Measures, with seven inspectors, aided by Charles B. Woolley, City Dealer of Weights and Measures, also with seven inspectors, made a joint raid on the market district, in the South End and in South Boston yesterday afternoon and last night, with wholesale results.

Commissioner Woolley has the names of 300 meat and provision dealers and fruit and vegetable hawkers. Some are to be brought into court. Others are to see him at his office this week to have the weights and measures law drive into their heads.

The commissioner brought back to the State House in his automobile at least fifty bar scales and six computing scales which were anywhere from a half ounce to a half pound short-weight.

He also had a score of the little glass cups which fruit vendors use to measure shelled nuts.

He had the names of twenty-five taxi-cab drivers who had been found without taximeter lamps. Tonight he will not note the high class of taxable.

Two baskets of grapes were also in the collection of evidence.

On Harrison avenue one of the inspectors was roughly handled by a crowd when he started to take a set of scales. The inspector showed his badge and the crowd quieted.

At the New Municipal Market in the South End the names of some men were taken who were selling apples in bags instead of by weight.

The raid created a sensation, especially in the market district around Faneuil Hall and Dock square.

The State Commissioner said after the raid:

"My duty is to protect all, especially the poor, from short weight. I am in hearty accord with the editorials in the market district around Faneuil Hall and Dock square.

JOHN JONES THE LAST TO SUELL THE BRITISH EAST

Feast of Germans Duplicated by American Admiral in Revolutionary War.

ENTERED ENGLISH PORT

Professor Albert Bushnell Hart of Harvard University, the eminent historian, said last night to the AMERICAN.

This bombardment by the Germans of an English coast town is the first time since John Paul Jones and his Yankee ships fired on the English coast and made landing during our revolutionary war.

During the Napoleonic war French battleships hovered about southwest-England, but kept in the channel and did not attempt invasion.

"When war was declared between England and the American colonies John Paul Jones offered his services to the revolutionists. They were accepted.

In 1779, Jones, then in command of the "Ranger," crossed the Atlantic to give battle to England in her own waters. Fighting around the coast of Ireland and then around the west, north and east of Scotland, he made his first attack on Whitehaven. The shells for cannon boats they were sent to the ship's deck set fire to the shipping in Whitehaven Harbor.

John landed his men, and it is said they plundered the mansion of the Earl of Salisbury.

The following year Commodore Jones was again called to the front. He was in command of the forty-two gun ship. With his ship leading a small squadron Jones attacked Leth, just below Edinburgh.

The engagement grew so hot that the Yankee commander went out to sea and off Flamborough Head to meet and hold his own in fierce fight with the British men of war. The battle ended in Jones capturing the Serapis, the gem of the enemy's fleet.

This ended the last attack by a foreign navy on England's coast.

Coming home to America John Paul Jones felt he was treated somewhat unjustly by Congress and he returned to Europe.

He entered the Russian navy, but his energy and jealousy in the service caused him to resign.

Poverty-stricken and disappointed, the great American admiral died in Paris in 1792.

Russians Trap Austrian Army of 150,000 Germans Now Making Last Stand in Poland

Czar's Troops, Outflanking Main
Army of Austrians, Forces Its Back to the Carpathians,
Where It May Be Destroyed

Enormous Losses, According to Petrograd Reports, Inflicted Upon Germans, Who Meet
Desperate Attack at Sieradz

PETROGRAD, Nov. 7.—A Russian drive, driven in between the German army and the Austrians, has effectively trapped the latter, who are being pushed up against the Carpathian Mountains, across which their retreat may be cut off by the heavy snowfall.

The situation of the Austrians is desperate, and unless a miracle is brought to pass the 150,000 men, with their numerous batteries of artillery and great quantities of war material and supplies, will either be forced to surrender or fight to a finish on ground that is most difficult.

An encircling movement by the Russians completely turned the left flank of the Austrians, and when they saw that they must retreat they turned toward Cracow, and to find that the Russians held this line, strongly barring their march.

The only way left open was in the direction of the Carpathians, and that way the Austrians have taken.

Whether the Austrians in retreating themselves from this position by hiding across the mountains into Hungary, or content themselves with holding the position into which they have been forced with their backs to the Carpathians, the fact remains that the great army of a million and a half of men is eliminated.

Meantime the Russians have carried the fighting against the Germans to within fifty miles of the German frontier. Strong Russian forces are attacking Sieradz in Russian Poland.

The Sieradz is on the Warta River, to the southeast of Kalisz, and is an important German position. It marks the beginning of the German retreat.

Official Statements

The following official statements from the various capitals describe the recent operations of the belligerent forces:

FRENCH.
PARIS, Nov. 7.—Between the canal of Launay and Arrou, and also between Arrou and the Oise river, many counter attacks have been made by day and night and have been repulsed.

We have likewise made small successes in the region of Vermeilles and in the south of Als. Nostris. In the course and in the region of Yverdon we have continued yesterday to get back all lost ground.

The Argonne now stands by the enemy have been repulsed and at the end of the day our troops have made notable progress at several points.

To the northeast of Verdun we have obtained possession of the village of Hancourt and Neuvilly.

In the region of Bouzon from the heights of the Meuse in the south-east of Verdun and in the forest of Argonne in the southeast of Metz the enemy's offensive have been driven back. Several trenches have been taken by us in the vicinity of St. Remi.

On the night of the 6th the German attacks upon the advance posts of the Grand Ducasse de Nancy were repulsed.

The only way left open was in the direction of the Carpathians, and that way the Austrians have taken.

Official Statements

The following official statements from the various capitals describe the recent operations of the belligerent forces:

RUSSIAN.
MOSCOW, Nov. 7.—Violent fighting which has been going on for weeks continues yesterday in the general retreat of the Germans.

On the previous day the Austrians attempted a final effort to break back our troops which were engaged in crossing the river Nahe. To a late hour at night the enemy pushed forward in an offensive movement, but everywhere was repulsed with heavy loss.

Result of French and Russian operations everywhere is encouraging to withdraw from the firing line and to bring energetically pursued along the entire front.

On October 29 we obtained a decided success against the Germans on the left bank of the Vistula in the neighborhood of Warsaw, that is on the right wing of our general strategic front. The object of our subsequent offensive was to strike from the southwest on the enemy's front which continued to be maintained on the Vistula and San rivers.

In the fighting between October 23 to October 27 we broke down the resistance of the Austro-German army which was fighting between the Vistula and San rivers.

Threatened with having its flank turned beyond Posen, the German army had been pursued by our troops.

On October 28 and November 2 we overcame the enemy's resistance in the region of New Alexander and Schuchow, and on November 3 the principal Austro-German forces in Poland were forced to retreat.

Developing over a period of eighteen days our successes along a front of 100 miles (133 miles) have resulted in breaking down the resistance of the enemy who is now in general retreat.

We are victorious in the inexhaustible goodness of God, who has blessed the superhuman heroism of our warriors, of whom Russia has the right to be proud.

The Russian army has been pursuing its march since it has been forced to retreat.

Turks Sink a Russian Vessel in

Supreme Effort "to Break the Allies' Lines in Belgium

The most startling piece of news comes in many days appears in the official announcement of the German Admiralty yesterday afternoon, that German warships had eluded the British fleet and attacked the coast of England, shelling the fortifications at Yarmouth.

It had been reported previously that shells dropped within miles of the shore at Yarmouth, but it was not known that the Germans were making an actual attack upon the land works. This being the case, it was the first assault against coast forts on British soil for more than a century. The Berlin official report follows:

On November 3 three German cruisers attacked the British coast at Yarmouth and shelled the fortifications, together with some small craft in the harbor.

The report that the submarine D-5 had been sunk came from other sources on the same day.

REPORT 2 CRUISE CAPTURED.
The general trend of war news continued favorable to the allies yesterday, with the fall of Tsing-Tau by the Japanese, and the capture of the German cruisers Scharnhorst and Gneisenau standing out as the important features. The repulse of the violent attacks by the Germans at various points in the 200-mile Franco-Belgian battle line was also announced in official reports from the allied capitals.

The news that Japanese warships had captured the Scharnhorst and Gneisenau, two of the powerful cruisers that sank the British cruisers Muenster and Good Hope off the Chilean coast, came in an unofficial and unconfirmed dispatch from Tokyo. It was announced several days ago that a Japanese squadron had started across the Pacific to run down the German men-of-war. Yesterday's report said the cruisers were captured while coaling. There was no indication as to the place of the capture, and official information will be awaited with interest.

RUSSIAN ARMIES ADVANCE.
With the capture of Tsing-Tau by the allied Anglo-Japanese army, Germany is now deprived of all her Asiatic possessions. The German prisoners who were taken when the fortress surrendered are being placed upon transports and will probably be sent to the German colonies. As a result of the victory, the Japanese will now be able to release all their naval strength to the task of clearing the Pacific of German warships.

The Russian War Office declared that the latest victory of the czar's armies over the Austro-German line is the most important triumph of the war. The general retreat of the MISS I. M. T.—Steaming the face is never successful against blackheads. Dieting will do no good. It is impossible to pinch out all the tiny blackheads, but you may remove them all in a few moments, much to your surprise, by simply sprinkling a little Mer-Xin on a hot wet sponge and rubbing it over the face. You will find that the blackheads have entirely vanished, even to the most minute ones. This is a formula worth remembering and using, never fails.

It is a well-known fact that the number of persons who are arrested for drunkenness in this city is increasing. The police department has been unable to keep the number of arrests down, and the public is becoming more and more alarmed. The city council has passed a resolution to increase the fine for drunkenness, but it is doubtful if this will be sufficient to deter persons from drinking to excess. HARVARD WALLOPS THE PRINCETON TIGER, 20-0

Eddie Mahan, Harvard back, kicking his second goal from the field in the Harvard-Princeton game yesterday afternoon. Mahan kicked the goal from the Princeton 15-yard line in the second period. Mahan has 11 goals in his place in Harvard's drop-kicker and the way he performed yesterday led Brickley himself to call Mahan "the best drop-kicker in football."

QUARANTINE CATTLE TO STOP ROOF PLAGUE

Governor and Council in Hurried Conference Takes Drastic Measures to Check Epidemic Among Bovines of Massachusetts

Governor Walsh and the Executive Council held a hurried session at the State House yesterday afternoon and authorized two emergency orders to combat the hoof and mouth disease which has broken out in Massachusetts in the most alarming and virulent degree.

This disease, among live stock, which is as malignant as the bubonic plague among human beings, has spread quarantine to be placed on this and nine other States by the Federal authorities.

The first order passed by the Governor and Council yesterday supplements the Federal precautions by prohibiting the shipment from point to point, within the State of "meat cattle, sheep, other rudiments or swine by railroad, boat or other conveyance, or to be driven on any public highway or bridge within the Commonwealth, except by permission of the Commissioner of Animal Industry."

STRICT QUARANTINE.

This order also demanded that "all dogs or cats on quarantined premises must be securely restrained during the period of quarantine."

The second order reads:

No hay, straw, forage, grain or other materials shall be removed from premises upon which hoof and mouth disease exists, and for such period thereafter as in the opinion of the commissioner of animal industry the public safety so demands, except by permission of the Commissioner of Animal Industry.

Both orders became operative the moment they were passed. Governor Walsh and the members of the Council made it clear that no pains or expense were to be spared to stop the plague in Massachusetts.

The delectable waltz, drifts, or floats into the lecture room—he never walks, oh, mercy! not he! trickles in like an animated angel and drapes himself over a seat—to sit in it is so brimful—(Note A)—If he gets there prematurely he goes to the course is closed.

BAR GAMBLING AT WOMEN'S CLUB

No One Said There Would Be Any, but No Chances Are Taken in Rules.

If you think the new rules are better than the women of the club, read the "Temporary Home Rules" of the Women's City Club of Boston, 500, in its newly-opened clubhouse at No. 49 Beacon street, will permit no dogs.

No making dates there with a new cook.

No trust—not for three months at least.

There are nearly 3,000 women in this remarkable organization, and the officers realize that 3,000 women can have about 3,000 different ideas about how to do things. Therefore they have framed some temporary house rules which cover all the ordinary points and some that men would never think of.

Take Rule XII—Applicants for domestic service shall not be interviewed at the clubhouse.

If Mrs. Audson of Brookline wishes to hire a new cook or second girl, she can't telephone to an employment bureau to "send up some girls to see me at the Women's City Club at 4 o'clock." The employment office brigade would never get in the clubhouse door.

There are only twenty-one men in all, and the shortest is no. XVI. It reads:

HANDLING IS NOT PERMITTED.

That's all. No mention of cards or bridge, what or double du-no, or playing for the hot chocolates or anything like that. The members must not gamble in the clubhouse—that's all. In their own homes they can play for the money or they can play for the love of the game.

Smoking is permitted in the guests' dining room.

That's all it says. Question: Who smokes?

The "dog problem is settled as sharply as the gambling question. Mrs. Back Bay can take her pet X-ray into her limousine, into the store, into her husband's office—if he has one, but she cannot bring the palpitating pup into the Women's City Club.

A woman can't leave her wrap in a room, her bag in another, her gloves in another. They must be safe enough, but it wouldn't be tidy. Mrs. XIII provides that wraps, hats and coats must be checked, not left around. Employees will pick up stray garments and packages and check 'em.

A great post-season football game between the Eastern and Western champions, for the benefit of the Belgian refugees—to be played in the largest stadium of the United States—was proposed last night by President James of the University of Illinois, at Champaign, Ill.

That the proposed game would result in receipts of $200,000 or more on the belief of President James, who has been active work to secure the consent of the Western champions of the past year for the game, was not a surprise.

Nearly 10,000 See Crimson Win Greatest Victory Over the Orange and Black in Its History—Eddie Mahan Shows Himself to Be a Second Brickley—Bradley and Hardwick Each Scores a Touchdown

Game Is Full of Fumbles and Both Sides Suffer Alike—Princeton Makes Only One Gain, Running with the Ball in the First Half—Tigers Show a Flash of Strength Near the End but Fail to Secure Anything

With Eddie Mahan showing drop kicks on him from overhead, and with Bradley, a tackle, the line back "Lark" Hardwick and divers and sundry other Harvard young gentlemen poking holes in his front and tumbling in under him, that famous Princeton Tiger was one mighty gasp.

The score was 20 to 0 in favor of Harvard, and it was not young Edward Mahan who contributed his six points with the aid of his prolific foot. Though a line is a second Brickley, but had he not scored the expected fruit of his every effort this afternoon, the local population would have been an explanation when you said "see and there are few handier young men around the eastern universities than a Harvard player."

THOUSANDS OF NEW ENGLAND MOTORISTS PLAN CROSS CONTINENT TRIPS TO SAN FRANCISCO EXPOSITION

The heavy black line indicates the Lincoln Highway. The coast-to-coast automobile route from Boston to San Francisco is shown. The central and southern routes may be used in winter, or as a change of route going or coming.

HOW BOSTON AUTOISTS WOULD ENJOY COAST-TO-COAST TRIP

William P. Fowle, Boston business man, and a New England pioneer in making the motor path from Boston to San Francisco, has written the story of his trip for the Sunday AMERICAN. Thousands of other Boston and New England motorists will undoubtedly follow him on the coast-to-coast trip. This is his story.

By WILLIAM P. FOWLE.

San America first. And there is no better way to see the land we live in than by motor. It is a cross the continent. It is a cross the continent.

More miles per gallon of gasoline because it's the Lightest Six

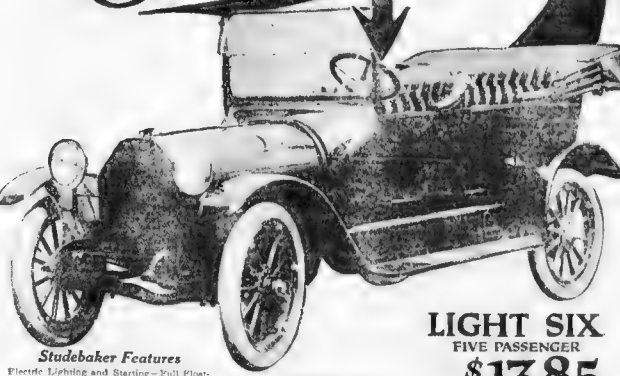

Of all the light sixes that are built, the Studebaker SIX is by far the most economical to operate. For the simple reason that of them all, the Studebaker is the LIGHTEST.

You know what weight costs in running a six-cylinder car. And here is a SIX that weighs only slightly over 2800 pounds—a SIX in which Studebaker engineers have succeeded in making a stronger car, at the same time doing away with hundreds of pounds of useless weight—and in redistributing the weight left so evenly that the riding qualities of the car have actually been improved—merely the cost of upkeep cut down.

And yet with this economy of operation, the Studebaker SIX gives you a dignity of design and elegance of finish that rank it with any car you pay for. The drive—and a motor of such even power and flexibility that it takes a steep test hill with ease.

For the man owning and driving a car in Boston and New England the Studebaker SIX is ideal. See it at the Studebaker Showroom—THE LIGHT SIX that is light.

WHAT TO USE IN RADIATORS TO PREVENT FREEZE

Authorities Agree That Alcohol Is One of the Best Non-Freezing Fluids That Can Be Used Although Other Solutions Are Used.

By J. C. KERRISON

It is a well known fact that the radiator of an automobile is one of the most important parts of the machine. It is the radiator that keeps the engine cool and prevents it from overheating. In winter, when the temperature is below freezing, the radiator fluid must be able to resist freezing. The best fluid for this purpose is alcohol. Alcohol has a low freezing point and it does not freeze at a temperature of -175 degrees Fahrenheit. This is much lower than the freezing point of water, which is 32 degrees Fahrenheit. Therefore, if the radiator fluid is made of alcohol, it will not freeze in the coldest weather. This is why alcohol is the best fluid to use in radiators in winter.

There are many other fluids that can be used in radiators, but none of them are as good as alcohol. Some people use glycol, but glycol is much more expensive than alcohol. Some people use a mixture of water and alcohol, but this mixture will freeze at a higher temperature than pure alcohol. Therefore, if you want to keep your radiator from freezing in winter, you should use alcohol.

Alcohol is also a good fluid to use in radiators in summer. It has a high boiling point, so it will not boil over as easily as water. It also has a low viscosity, so it will flow easily through the radiator. Therefore, alcohol is a good fluid to use in radiators all year long.

When the stock Mitchell 1915 Light Four

Reliability Record Long Distance, Daily Run, Mitchell Sealed Bonnet Car Completed its Long Run in Pittsburgh Friday, October 23rd, 1914, Automobile history was made.

A new World's long Distance and Daily Run Record was hung up for a Sealed Bonnet Four Cylinder car.

The beautiful light car had run 2500 miles or 250 miles per day for 30 consecutive days with sealed bonnet or hood. Think of it. Here a light car—35 horsepower—four cylinder—high speed motor that since September 23rd, 1914 had gone from Chicago, Illinois to Portland, Maine—New York City, N. Y., Washington, D. C., Wheeling, W. Va., Pittsburgh, Pa., St. Louis, Mo., Kansas City, Mo., Omaha, Neb., Minneapolis, Minn., Milwaukee, Wis., Chicago and finally Pittsburgh.

Half the Continent had been circled in 30 days. In all 21 states were traversed. Desperate conditions of roads and weather had been encountered—Rains, Washouts, reconstructed roads—crushed zones—mountain declivities, hub-deep and sticky clays. At one stage 65 miles had to be made on low speed and this marvelous engine did it without overheating in the least degree—the radiator was cool.

The progress of this World's Record Car resembled a tour of triumph—everywhere Mitchell enthusiasts—and there are some 35,000 owners of Mitchell Cars scattered over this country—Civil officials and Government officials welcomed its arrival and acclaimed its prodigious achievement. In Chicago an air ship escorted it around town.

When the car arrived in Pittsburgh it was inspected—the seals were found unbroken and the car remained firm to be in superb condition.

BUSINESS IS ON THE MEND

General Improvement of Conditions in the British Empire.

That there is a general improvement of business conditions throughout the British Empire is the conclusion of the European war is the declaration of John L. Paine, European manager of the Hupmobile Car Company, who recently arrived in London.

Paine went abroad for the purpose of investigating business conditions and to ascertain to what extent the European war has affected the automobile industry. His report in a letter to the Hupmobile Car Company is as follows: "The automobile industry in the British Empire is showing a general improvement of business conditions throughout the British Empire is the conclusion of the European war is the declaration of John L. Paine, European manager of the Hupmobile Car Company, who recently arrived in London."

While we have not yet seen the full effect of the war, it is evident that the automobile industry is showing a general improvement of business conditions throughout the British Empire is the conclusion of the European war is the declaration of John L. Paine, European manager of the Hupmobile Car Company, who recently arrived in London."

No Increase in Size of Cadillac Hood

Now that the Cadillac Eight is on display at many points throughout the country, the general idea regarding the appearance of the car has been revised.

When it was announced that the new Cadillac would be an eight-cylinder motor, many people expected that the car would be a radical departure from the usual practice with a multi-cylinder motor. This of course would have necessitated a hood of abnormal length.

As a matter of fact, the Cadillac Eight is a six-cylinder motor, four on the right side and four on the left, at an angle of 30 degrees to each other. The result is that the total length of the motor is no greater than that of the average four-cylinder engine and the hood of the new Cadillac Eight is no longer than that of last year's Cadillac.

These perfect proportions are maintained between body and hood.

Manager F. H. Lucas of the Pope-Hartford Company of Boston, distributor of the Hupmobile and Metz cars, is very enthusiastic over the results of the Metz reliability run.

Metz Cars in Desert Race

Three Metz cars have been entered by owners in the great race from Los Angeles, Cal., to Phoenix, which will start tomorrow and be continuous on Tuesday and Wednesday.

The race which is the sixth annual one of its kind, is one of the toughest propositions in the world. The three Metz cars, which are stock cars, will be driven by owners and on account of their lightness, combined with speed and endurance, are expected to make a great showing by enthusiasts on the coast.

There will be sixteen other cars in the contest, whose drivers will be the pick of the West, ready to make their cars and skill on their decision to be first into Phoenix after a mountain and desert drive of three days, covering a course of nearly 500 miles in length.

Great Increase in Business

The success of the Vette (Hupmobile) Light Six and the widespread interest which it has aroused among the automobile dealers of New England is remarkable, said Manager Bradford of the Vette Boston branch.

"While we anticipated many inquiries the returns have been entirely beyond our expectations and we have been obliged to double our efforts in order to give prompt attention to the correspondence in this connection."

ANTI-FREEZING MIXTURES

One part of alcohol to three parts of water will not freeze at 10° below zero. It is to be feared the early part of the winter will be a hard one for the thermometer to stand below zero.

Diagram of the Plays in the Harvard-Princeton Game

Brickley Calls Mahan Best Drop Kicker in the Game

By CHARLES E. BRICKLEY, Captain of the Harvard Eleven.

Playing in perfect form, Harvard literally swept Princeton off its feet and what was expected to be a close, hard battle resulted in a comparatively easy win for Harvard.

For the first time this season our men got the jump on their opponents, and right from the start Harvard distinctly outplayed Princeton.

The game was a distinct triumph for the Haughton system of football. It showed that, in spite of repeated losses of players, the team could still play better than at any time this year.

Eddie Mahan came into his own in the kicking department today. His wonderful punting kept Princeton continually on the defensive.

In drop-kicking Mahan justified the confidence of all of us. He showed that he is what I have always claimed for him—the best drop-kicker in the game.

The one reason that he hasn't kicked many field goals up to this season is that he hasn't had the chance to try—which is a very good reason.

With a little more luck on his side, "Eddie" would have made all his tries. The ones he missed were from long distances, and on one of them the pass from center was not good.

Princeton's punting was a distinct disappointment. The kicks were short and low and the Princeton ends didn't cover them very well.

There was much fumbling by both teams, which I think was due to the fact that this was the first real cold day and the players weren't used to handling the ball under such conditions.

Harvard "SEES GOOD." It seemed strange to see so many Harvard substitutes playing in the Princeton game, but the "subs" showed that they have come right along with the varsity, for Princeton could do little without them.

King, who substituted for Francis, was especially good and showed that he is a very good player.

Francis, who was substituted for King, was also very good and showed that he is a very good player.

STORY OF THE GAME TOLD PLAY BY PLAY

When the officials gathered on the field and the two teams stood up to the center, there were about 25,000 persons about the field. Harvard won the toss and chose to defend the south goal while Princeton attacked from the north.

Driggs kicked off to Logan, who drove into Harvard's 35-yard line before he was tackled by a Harvard player. Logan then kicked a field goal.

When Francis, Mahan and Logan had found the Princeton line, Logan drove into the Princeton line and kicked a field goal.

AWARDED PARDON IN STRANGE CASE

Former New Haven Road Engineer Flights an Underserved Crime.

The granting of a pardon by the Governor's Council to Alfred A. Blair, a former engineer on the New York,
Haven & Hartford Railroad, has caused much discussion.
The pardon was granted to Blair on the ground that he was an under-served crime. Blair was convicted of a crime which was not considered a serious one by the public. The pardon was

No Longer the Frivolous Idol of the Gay Paris Boulevards

Mlle. Rubinstein
In One of Her
"Dances of Abandon."

"Behold, then, Mlle. Rubinstein, all frivolity gone, jewels and fripperies shed for the quiet garb of a nurse, the footlights exchanged for the glare of bursting shells, succoring the wounded on the ghastly battlefields."

How Ida Rubinstein, the Artistic Dancer, Was Instantly Changed to a Saddened and Sobered Woman

Paris, November 1
IDA RUBINSTEIN, the rich and beautiful Russian dancer, has been transformed in a day from the gay and frivolous idol of the Paris boulevards and stage into the most tireless and devoted angel of mercy adored by the wounded soldiers of France and England. No sudden revolution in character or condition created by the war has been more complete or picturesque than this.

It was as sudden as Mlle. Rubinstein's recent nightly change from the petted beauty of her perfumed boudoir into the martyred hero of the play which the enamored d'Annunzio wrote for her—"Saint Sebastian"—and hardly less absolute.

It came about in this way: Mlle. Rubinstein, charmingly costumed, in every detail true to her queenly status among the gay Parisians, was driving from her residence toward the Bois de Boulogne in her limousine when her equipage was momentarily held up by a Paris police man.

For Ida Rubinstein such an indignity was unheard-of. She protested indignantly, giving her name. A crowd had gathered about the beauty seated in her car. A subordinate military officer approached. The policeman made way for him.

"Mademoiselle," said the officer, "your motor car is requisitioned for military use. We must take it now."

"You rob me of my automobile—and you have the impudence to pitch me, Ida Rubinstein, into the street!"

"Mademoiselle must pardon me. The first trainload of wounded and dying is now at the railroad station."

"Wounded—dying? You say a trainload? Who are they? Where are they?"
"Mademoiselle is entitled to a receipt for the motor!"

"Receipt for my car! Oh, no, it is not that I want. The car is yours—but I must go with it. A trainload of wounded and dying—my duty is with them!"

On the following day all Paris knew, through the newspapers, that Mlle. Ida Rubinstein had presented four ambulance automobiles to the American Hospital at Neuilly. Many of her friends, the idlers of the clubs, called to overwhelm her with praise—and long tokens of flowers and jewels—but her door was closed to them.

Mlle. Rubinstein had given to the soldiers fighting for France not only automobiles, but herself—the personal service of her own fair hands.

Soon all Paris learned that she had provided at her own expense thirty beds at the Hotel Bristol for wounded English soldiers. Verily, the fascinating dancer was "giving"—she who hitherto had known but one role—that of giving.

Then shortly came the news that planted consternation in the bosoms of those gay boulevardiers who were too old and too naïf to despise the fact that she herself was spending each night, driving straight into the hail of German bullets and shells and returning with heroic English and French lives to be saved by hospital treatment in Paris.

Mlle. Rubinstein had fitted out an extra capacious ambulance automobile, in which she herself was spending each night, driving straight into the hail of German bullets and shells and returning with heroic English and French lives to be saved by hospital treatment in Paris.

As a gag there were young officers who had been familiar with the details of the daily life of the perfumed and petted idol. They knew her, too, as the most genuinely talented and capable of the stage beauties of Europe. All the more reason, so they thought, why she should not do spectacular things like footlight favorites of obscure theatres seeking advertisement.

It is said that the stage role of the martyred Saint Sebastian, which the great Italian poet d'Annunzio wrote for her, had a profound effect upon Ida Rubinstein's psychology. But all Parisians know that such a germ of heroism, if it is planted at all, remained latent up to the time of the incident here described. She was still a luxurious, petted beauty receiving as her due the choicest tributes exacted by members of her class.

All in an instant, as though the groans of wounded soldiers had reached her ears, came the vital change that has made of her a heroine whose memory will be cherished long after her beauty has faded forever.

Just What Makes a LOAF OF BREAD GET STALE

Researchers have found that the reason a loaf of bread gets stale is because of the way it is stored. The bread is stored in a place where it is not exposed to the air, and this causes it to become stale.

Wrapping bread also helps to keep it from getting stale. The bread is wrapped in a material that keeps it from becoming stale.

How BIRDS PLANT MISTLETOE and Make NUTMEGS GROW

Many birds, especially the hawks, are known to plant mistletoe on the branches of trees. They do this by dropping the seeds of the plant, which then grow into mistletoe.

Nutmegs are also planted by birds. The birds drop the seeds of the nutmeg tree, which then grow into nutmegs.

These investigations show what an important part mistletoe plays in the life of the birds. It is a very important part of their life.

Why CABBAGES Cost So Much

Some of the causes which may be responsible for a large part of the high price of cabbage are the way it is grown and the way it is stored. The cabbage is grown in a place where it is not exposed to the air, and this causes it to become expensive.

THE coming Winter promises to be one that will be remembered for its many fine, old, and new and unusual features.

The western and Central States will have a very late Autumn, and even western Canada will escape the usual Wintry blasts that so often chill the Last Winter was noted for its unusual ^{unusually} warm ^{weather} in the southern states where we naturally expect a mild climate. The far North, where we naturally expect a cold climate, had a mild Winter.

From the above we can see that the weather is very variable, and that the caterpillar will find it difficult to find a place where it can live and grow. It will find it difficult to find a place where it can live and grow. It will find it difficult to find a place where it can live and grow.

while the cold will be intense in the more northern portions, and all throughout the northern part of North America, the temperature will range far below normal during a great portion of our Winter period.

It has been many years since the Vernal Equinox has occurred so late in September as it has this year. In the United States, the temperature at this time of the year is usually below normal, and the equinox has been experienced in the latter part of the year. In some of the more northern portions of the United States, the temperature has been below normal for some time.

In this part of the world the winds and clouds are usually light and variable, with a relative atmospheric condition, which is not so much as the weather producing the same effect. Our weather was moving slowly as at any other time in the year.

The True Lines of Fashion

A "Sumptuous Line," Which is Magnificent Without Being "Overladen" New "Lucile" Model

One of the New "Lucile" Evening Gowns, in Which the Natural Line of the Figure is Preserved.

The First Essentials of Good Taste in Dress Analyzed By Lady Duff-Gordon.

LADY DUFF-GORDON, the famous "Lucile" of London, and foremost creator of fashions in the world, writes each week the fashion article for this newspaper, presenting all that is newest and best in styles for well-dressed women.

Lady Duff-Gordon's Paris establishment brings her into close touch with that centre of fashion.

Lady Duff-Gordon's American establishment is at Nos. 37 and 39 West Fifty-seventh street, New York.

By Lady Duff-Gordon.

I HAVE been asked, "What are the true lines of fashion? Are there indeed any true lines?" I answer—"To doubt it is to doubt there is anything like it."

But, they say, this year there is one fashion in lines, last year there was another, next year there will be still another, and each will be different. All of these cannot be the true lines. Which one is right?

Then I know that those who ask really have in mind the hideous bustles, the spreading crinolines, the atrocious shoulder puffs and so on of other days.

But these were excrescences, false lines, nightmares, developments which soon met their end. The true lines of fashion are very, very old ones. The Greeks knew them. The women of the Orient have known them for ages.

Their secret is simple. They are the lines that will truly and lastingly bring out the natural and inherent beauty of the perfect woman figure. They are the lines that will hide or disguise any departure from the right mould of nature.

They are not the lines that add the false, grotesque or vulgar generation to the figure.

The body itself, the perfect body can never be in bad taste. And so, therefore, the fashion which has moulded and conforms to the lines of that body cannot be in bad taste. But anything that departs from it runs at once the risk of falsity, ugliness.

The true lines of fashion must have first then—nature's form.

simplicity. Any dress which conforms to these two things is a good dress, correct fashion—no matter by whom it is made or of what material.

In another article I have outlined, briefly, my philosophy of color and its effects upon the wearer and those who gaze upon the wearer. The same truths hold in the lines of fashion.

The ancient Greek woman was graceful, lovely, beautiful because, among other things, she suffered no external disharmonies of garb to mar the harmony of her figure. Of course I speak of the type that impresses itself upon the genius of the Venus de Milo, the Winged Victory, the wonders of the Elgin marbles and so on.

Line of dress and natural line of the women are absolutely and eternally harmonious. Try the effect of a bustle on the Venus de Milo, or of a crinoline, and see how absurd the "figure" becomes, how utterly annihilated is its dignity and nobility. It becomes a thing to be laughed at, pitifully absurd.

And if this is so of a statue, how much more is it so of the mobile thing that is the body of a living woman?

I do not mean that women ought to go about in the flowing robes of the ancient Greeks—although I honestly do not think it would be altogether bad if they did.

But I do mean that they could well seize the inner thought of which those robes were but one symbol, one materialization—the ideal of harmony and simplicity and true naturalness.

You ask me, "How is it possible for a very fat woman to attain this ideal when her own body is inharmonious, or a very thin woman when she is equally essentially inharmonious?"

To the first I answer, it is not at all necessary, except in a few cases of actual disease, to be fat. In most women fat is the result of laziness, wrong eating or neglect. Any woman who has enough courage and will power can conquer her fat.

The woman who hasn't enough of those two qualities is not the kind that has enough of the eternal strength in her to be a true type. I speak now, of course, of the really offensively fat woman. There is a type of large thin woman, a woman built on heroic lines, who, though called fat by the unthinking, is not fat at all. Such women lend themselves admirably to the true lines. Their only danger is that the canvas is so large that there is more of a margin left for error. A little intelligent study will obviate this danger and give them their right harmonies.

The very thin woman has an advantage that the very fat woman has not. It is always easier to disguise the lack of certain physical qualities than it is to hide a superabundance of them. And it is easier to build up to a standard than it is to drill down to one.

Nevertheless, it is important to know that there is a standard, that the standard can be attained and that the matter of real beauty and taste rests on so simple a foundation.

Moles and Other Growths Now Cured by Dry Heat

MEDICAL records are multiplying cases of morbid localizing treatment. The treatment, as does not growths on the surface of the face, is not disfiguring, there being no scar of the body and upon accessible part of scar tissue. The only disadvantage is mucous membranes cured by the expense and clumsiness of the necessary application of dry heat through sary apparatus.

A special advantage of this treatment is that moles, ulcers, warts and other abnormal growths are removed without the use of a knife or caustic.

In localized cancer of the mucous membranes, such as the tongue and inner surfaces of the lips, the results of desiccation compare favorably with those obtained in localized skin cancer, although there is not quite the same surrounding area. The curing process, while drying up and causing the abnormal tissue to disappear, seals up and protects the blood and lymph channels—which is important when the growth to be removed is a malignant one.

The process also includes sterilization, insuring rapid repair. Further, the high tension current has an anæsthetic property which makes the application bearable, even upon mucous points surrounding the eyeball. The degree of heat used is not sufficient to burn the diseased tissue, only to kill and dry it up, so that it speedily disappears. A current strong enough to do the work can be directed through a sheet of white paper without charring or coloring the paper. Afterward the tissue treated can be pulverized and removed with the fingers.

Morbid growths which extend to a considerable depth beneath the skin yield to the desiccating action of the electric current. In fact, the instrument does not come into actual contact with the patient's body. Following are some of the conditions reported by Dr. William L. Clarke to the American Medical Association as cured in this way:

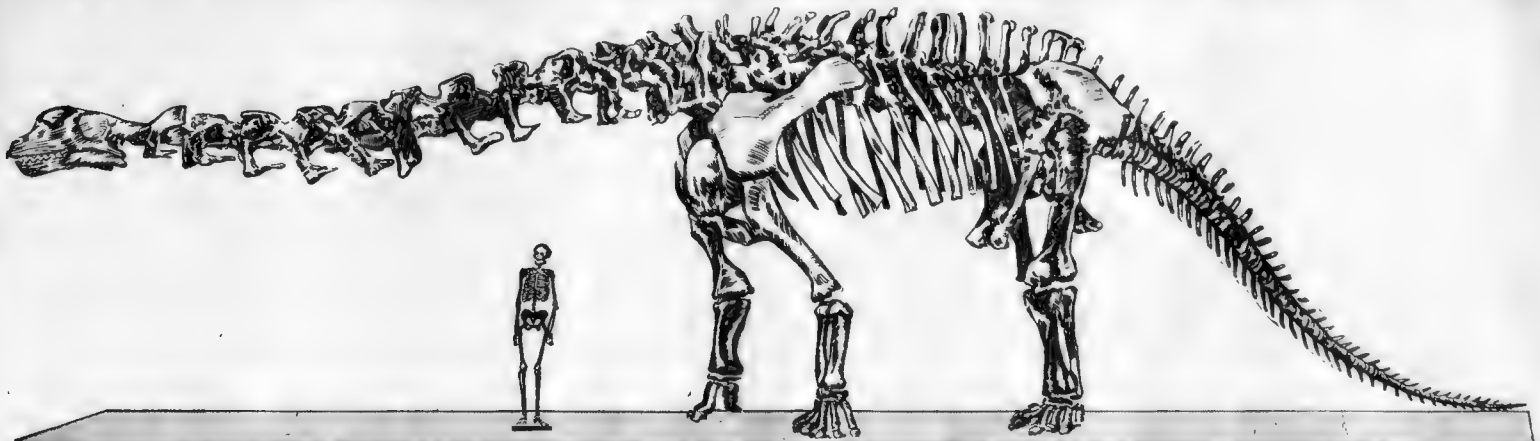

In localized cancer of the mucous membranes, such as the tongue and inner surfaces of the lips, the results of desiccation compare favorably with those obtained in localized skin cancer, although there is not quite the same surrounding area. The curing process, while drying up and causing the abnormal tissue to disappear, seals up and protects the blood and lymph channels—which is important when the growth to be removed is a malignant one.

The desiccation treatment has been used with success in cases of lupus, acne and varicose sores, and other ulcers, and meets with no resistance in the more common forms of malignant skin eruptions.

In connection with the Roentgen ray treatment of deep-seated growths, desiccation by the electric current is declared to be of great value.

"The ideal line of a dress is that which enables its wearer to assume any attitude as naturally as though the dress did not exist. This picture conveys an idea of what I mean."

Brain Counts—Not Bones or Size

MILLIONS ask themselves, "Why do I fail, when that other man succeeds?"

If the big brontosaurus, whose skeleton you see here, could come back to life he would probably ask in amazement, "Why did I die out and vanish, while that shrimp, whose skeleton is under my neck, took possession of the globe?"

The answer to the brontosaurus, and to the average man who wonders why he fails, is about the same.

You fail because not enough energy, vitality and consistent work are devoted to the head, and the brain in it.

The brontosaurus whose skeleton you see, dug up in Wyoming and now exhibited in New York's Museum of Natural History, is a small individual—only 66 feet long, weighed only forty thousand pounds. Carnegie's money has dug out for the scientists a giant monster twice as big as this. And out West they are now digging from the rocks a skeleton bigger than the Carnegie giant.

This little brontosaurus, however, will do for the sermon that we are to preach this Sunday.

Look at the monster's backbone. You see the separate joints, the vertebrae. At the end on the left you see the skull. That is simply one of those vertebrae, developed a little more than the others, and specialized for thinking.

It is just the same with YOUR BACK-BONE. Each of the joints contains its supply of the spinal cord, which is a continuation of the brain. And at the top, with your eyes and nose and mouth in front, and the brain above and back, is the head, which is only one of those back bones, a little more developed than the others.

But all success depends on HOW MUCH you develop that top joint of the backbone.

The old brontosaurus found this out and his race died.

He relied upon everything but his brain—as a good many young men do.

He got bigger and bigger, his power was very great, the big bones in his neck were hollow, so that he could hold it up without too great effort. The long tail was arranged to balance the neck, so that he wouldn't fall over on his knees.

He could swim with great speed, escaping his enemies in that way—SOME TIMES.

He represented pretty well millions of years ago, in the Mesozoic age, about what the college boy, thinking only of athletics, represents in the human world of to-day.

We print these two skeletons, and ask you to look at the top joint in each backbone, that is to say, the skull.

Notice how big is the skull of man, in proportion to his body, compared with the skull of this extinct monster, compared with its body.

Remember that a well developed human head is a good deal more than half brains, whereas the head of the brontosaurus had

Here You See Man, Surviving in the Struggle and Ruling the World, and the Giant Animal That Went Down in Spite of Terrific Power.

The Lesson of This Picture, Important to Young Women and Men Especially, Is Told in the HEADS of the Big and the Little Skeletons.

What Has Gone On IN THE BRAIN of Man Through 500,000 Years Has Made Him Ruler of This Earth.

but a speck of brain above the great jaws—and you will know why one survived and the other perished.

Millions of years ago, this giant, brontosaurus, and his brothers and sisters, and other huge, strange creatures, lived and fought and died. Some of them, like this one, ate only vegetables. Others, with sharp teeth, devoured their fellows. Some had bony armor on their backs. Some could fly. Some went on all fours, some walked on their hind legs with very short front legs—ALL ARE GONE.

Millions of years ago they lived. Millions of years from now, undoubtedly, MEN WILL STILL LIVE.

See how creatures inhabiting this planet have changed in the millions of years since the brontosaurus disappeared.

Consider what wonderful changes will come in the millions of years that are ahead of man.

We KNOW, barring some collision in space, some disaster to our planet, that this earth will endure, and the sun's heat will continue to warm it, for millions of years.

During that time, what changes will go on in the brain of man, what wonders will be added to his present accomplishments! What, five million years from now, will be the shape, what will be the size of the skull of that little skeleton standing under the brontosaurus's neck? How completely will he control this planet. What a beautiful garden will he make of it—interesting questions, but too big for to-day.

Man as a race will develop and accomplish intellectual miracles that it would be absolutely impossible for us to understand—just as it would be impossible for this brontosaurus to understand the telephone or the printing press.

The question for you to think about now is: WHAT CAN YOU DO WITH YOUR OWN BRAIN?

The brain has brought man where he is, made him ruler of the earth.

You are born to inherit all the knowledge that men have accumulated. How can you make your brain use that knowledge well? How can you make the brain your servant, your instrument for fighting life's difficulties, and your own weaknesses first of all?

In your head there are three brains—and they should all be kept busy.

There is the front brain, just back of your forehead, called the cerebrum. There is the cerebellum, or back brain, in the back of your head, and, below, just above the ending of the backbone, there is the medulla oblongata, connecting the other two brains with the spinal cord and the nerves that are the brain's messenger boys.

In the front brain, original thought is born—and with most of us the front brain enjoys a permanent vacation.

In that front brain, of which we yet know little, genius sees by inspiration the truths that are afterward proved and confirmed by science.

The cerebrum or back brain is the working, thinking, planning part of the brain. Your energetic business man of America has usually a good, big back head. Much driving energy there. Sometimes he has a good front head, too—but, unfortunately, that is usually idle.

At the base of the brain are the so called "basal ganglia." The lowest part of the brain, just above your collar in the back, is a humble but a highly important part of your thinking machinery.

In that lower, humble brain, good habits are developed, time saved, important work made automatic.

The "basal ganglia" have been well called the "private secretaries" of the brain. When by careful thought and study you have learned to do a certain mechanical thing, knitting, typewriting, walking up and down stairs, the humble private secretary brain takes charge of the work and frees the thinking brain from responsibility. Thus it happens that an old lady can knit without dropping a stitch, with her thoughts very far away from the stocking, the telegrapher can tick off his message, thinking of something else.

That which is difficult at first becomes easy when the little brain servants have learned how to do it. They do it without troubling you.

That is why it is so important, young ladies and gentlemen, to form good and regular habits. Once the habit is formed it becomes second nature. And the humble brain servants carry you along, living up to the good habits automatically, without troubling you, or forcing you every time to make a good resolution.

Getting up early, eating slowly, taking deep breaths, holding your shoulders back that your lungs may not be cramped, brushing your teeth regularly—all the things that little boys hate and neglect, once they have become HABITS and been made part of your lower brain, give no more trouble.

Try it and you will see.

Possibly you will ask: "What can I do with MY individual brain? I inherited it as it is. Can I improve it enough to make it worth while to struggle?"

You can, indeed. First, teach your brain good habits—just as you teach good habits to a cat or a dog. That is highly important to your own health and to everybody else's comfort.

Second, you can cultivate your brain and dig deeper into it, as a farmer cultivates and digs into the soil.

"What we know is little, but what we do not know is immense," said the great Frenchman La Place.

What we do NOT know is immense, indeed. We pride ourselves on our "knowledge," and we do not know any one of the things that the higher intelligences of this universe would consider important.

We do not know how the universe began, what its purpose is, why we are here at all, whence we came from, whither we are going.

A baby two hours old, in the lowest part of the steerage of an ocean steamship, is no more ignorant concerning his voyage and destination than the most learned man on this planet. We only know that we sail around our sun, that the sun is going SOMEWHERE, and that we are going with it.

We know that we were not alive a few years ago, that we shall be dead a few years from now—we know a few little tricks to keep us alive, supply us with food, light our houses, talk to and murder each other—and that is the limit.

What we know is little, what we do not know is immense.

But the brain that most of us neglect is immense also.

Remember that while it is true that the world and the universe are vast and overwhelming, while the possibilities of knowledge are unspeakably appalling, THE BRAIN IN YOUR HEAD, PROPERLY DEVELOPED, IS AS COMPLETED AS THE UNIVERSE ITSELF AND CAPABLE OF CONTAINING ALL POSSIBLE KNOWLEDGE.

The brain is made up of millions upon millions of cells. These in their turn are made up of molecules, so numerous that the brain cannot conceive them.

The smallest living being, so tiny that we cannot see it with the microscope, is made up at least of one hundred million molecules. Your brain is made up of tens of thousands of millions of them.

These molecules in their turn are divided into atoms, and they in their turn into electrons. The electrons surround the atom, as the earth and the other planets surround our sun.

There are no words that could convey to our mind any conception of the smallness of the atom, or of the numerous little electrons moving with infinite speed that make up the atom.

Thought has no weight, no size, no shape.

Knowledge weighs nothing, takes up no room.

In a part of the brain, smaller than the head of a pin, there might be stored away for all we know, ALL THE KNOWLEDGE THAT MEN POSSESS AND A THOUSAND TIMES MORE.

All of the facts that men call science, knowledge, history, might be packed away in a part of the brain so small that you could not see it, even with the "ultra microscope."

Surely it pays to cultivate a brain with such possibilities.

This earth in a way is like our brain. Great parts of it are neglected. Great parts of it go to waste.

There are forests, swamps, deserts, mountain regions and oceans, not occupied, lying idle. They will all be used some day.

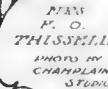

The brain of man is more than nine hundred and ninety-nine thousandths idle and waste. A thin covering on the top, called the "cortex," something like the brown soil that covers the earth, is the only part of the brain that works.

Every day that you live, think, observe, study, you are doing for your brain what the farmer does for his land.

Do it. IT PAYS.

Don't make the mistake made by the brontosaurus in this picture, and by his relations. They didn't think, they are gone. Think and you will survive.

BUSINESS IS BUSINESS

Here's Old Joe Welch

Vaudeville's Great
Character Comedian

TAKE it away from me, if I had my life to live it over again, I would never be born. The only thing to think about is money, and what's the good of it, anyway? If you save it you're a miser; if you spend it you're a spendthrift; if you steal it you're a thief; if you give it up you're a sucker.

Only a little while ago I had three hundred dollars I was afraid to trust anybody with. So I just put it in a bank; and then I had to move my house to right across the street from the bank so I could watch it. Whenever I went in that bank the cashier had his hat on.

Look how high everything is. We used to get potatoes ten cents a quart. Now every quart is a pint. And we got it big piece Swiss cheese ten cents. Now the cheese is getting smaller and the holes larger. If we ever have a piece of steak on the table all the neighbors come in to look at it. Around our street it's getting so folks won't speak to you if they have steak for dinner. They're afraid you'll invite yourself to eat.

Our landlord tried to make us think he was so nice. He said he'd give us two months' rent for nothing. Well, that's all right as far as it goes, but you see we have to move six times a year.

And when Rockwells came to live with us—live on us—he said he would make such a fine boarder. All he makes is five bills for us to pay. The way he grabs the sugar for his coffee—well, I just told him yesterday morning to take the sugar bowl and pour his coffee in it.

My boy Nathan—everybody says there's something in him. I see where I got to knock it out of him. He wants to be a lawyer. He ought to make a good one. He can talk all day and say nothing. Oh, when I look at him I'm sorry I married into his family.

From college Nathan says he just found out he came from a monkey. I told him don't blame me—it must be on his mother's side. Then he says we lived in trees. He's wrong—we live in the Bronx. Said he referred to his forefathers. "Four fathers?" I said, "Nathan, you have one father only, and that's I'm." Then he said something about liar, but what's to argue?

The only way I proved he was wrong was when he asked me for more money. I just told him to go to his other three fathers.

Oh, sometimes I get so disappointed I could lie in bed and blow out the gas. But the bills are so big I couldn't afford it. I tell you when we're single we're happy. My wife cries to me all she gets in work, work, work. Well, she thinks she married me for pleasure, I suppose. She says, "Why do you kick, didn't I raise it a big family for you?" Yes, she did, eight bums.

When she gets sick she never can have anything like the rest of us got. The last thing she did was appendicitis. She suffered terribly, all drawn up. The doctor wouldn't let her talk. He soaked me two hundred dollars, which was worth it. He had it coming to him. It is yet.

And she was so delirious. Doctor said to give her the needle and she'd be quiet. Needle? I wouldn't dare go near her with a stick. Then that doctor told me she was at death's door. I said, "A dollar extra if you pull her through."

We had a strained nurse, and such a loader she was! The whole house waited on her. We in the family did more work than the nurse. She sat in a rocker and read books. For with her we paid her to do twenty-five dollars a week. When I told my wife that she had a relapse for a month.

That nurse had a paper and she put on it lot numbers. She was fixing up a deal with the doctor, and I heard him tell her the other day while they were looking at it: "Don't say nothing to the old man until it's all over." I had a look at the paper and saw all over it $4, 34 a dollar and one, and still going up. That's the way. They even skin you while you're sick. But I fooled 'em. I sneaked into the room one night and changed the numbers.

I had such hard luck, too, with my different business. A little while ago I had a bird store. I never had a chance to get down. From eight to ten in the morning I had to chew up bread for the canaries. From ten to twelve I had to catch flies for the goldfish. Then right away the whole afternoon I must go walking in the park with fifty dogs. I would be dying unless I had to give it up.

Then I started a saloon, but I soon saw the bartender was in partnership with the cash register. So I fooled him. Gave him the saloon and made myself bartender.

MONTAGUE'S COLUMN

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

The Bigger They Are the Harder They Fall!

IN early days a plutocrat was large and stern and fierce and fat. His heart was hard as steel and his mind was as cold as ice. And if a soul dared intimate that his methods weren't quite straight the way he'd swear and rage and tear. Was really something awful.

BUT plutocrats are nowadays soon snaking 'round in devious ways. Avoiding jail, with faces pale. With fear instead of fury. Today the road they wander in is set with pitfalls and with gin. What else they do they're likely to fall foul of some Grand Jury.

UNLESS a process server grim is hunting 'round the town for him. With a searching gaze, these modern laws. A financier feels slighted. Unless one's reputation's built on legal evidence of guilt. Folks say, "Tall Toot That poor, old mutt! He's never been indicted!"

IMPERATIVE

IF Japan intends to give Kian-chai back to China within the specified time she'll have to hurry up and capture it!

THE COLONEL IS OUT OF A JOB

NOW is the time for a new colonel. A known of a good first class colonel. And river to give the position, as there will be no more of it. Another geography.

HE'LL STICK TO THE ROCK PILE

THE man that started the war by killing the Austrian girl. He's been sent up for twenty years, and it is not likely that he'll apply for any chance to drive the warlords around Vienna in a motor car.

NOT WHOLLY SPORT.

THE Puritans could never have objected to the halting. It was a bear on the ground that it gave pleasure to the halter.

BE QUICK ABOUT IT!

"AMERICAN Doctors Find War Microbes."—Brook in Face. Let 'em isolate it immediately before it infects anybody else here!

HE'D LAST ABOUT A WEEK ON BROADWAY.

IF that five thousand dollar food inspector is compelled to inspect very much food in the lobster sons he'll find his salary woefully inadequate.

TOO LATE TO HELP MUCH

THE fact that seats on the Stock Exchange are selling at bargain rates is of little value to the plutocrats just now. What they need are seats on the Grand Jury.

THE LONG HEADED, FAR-SIGHTED GREEK

WE might have known that Turkey was going to get into the war when Greece came over here shopping for battleships.

MORE OLD LANDMARKS TO GO.

THE war is to be carried into Egypt. Good night, pyramids.

QUITE TO BE EXPECTED

NOT to be outdone by any of the other belligerents, Turkey will declare this a holy war.

THE NORTH SEA TRAWLER.

TO catch a shoal of herrings. His daily sets his line. And maybe in the morning. He lands a bunch of mites. He spreads his nets for haddock. Upon the billows green. And when he hauls aboard the trawls. He takes a submarine. And so the North Sea billows. His little atlatlap dips. He hopes to catch that by and bye. He'll get some battleships.

A NATURAL INFERENCE.

THE fact that King Manuel has volunteered for the war leads us to suppose that satisfaction of the Lilies is among the host of actresses who have volunteered since the war.

EARNED.

IT is gratifying to learn that the Belgians will get the Nobel Peace Prize. The struggle the gamiest fight for peace ever recorded in the world's history.

IN EXTENUATION.

AT FIRST GIB the past rise to upbraid. And fill you with regret. Take credit that you've never made. A freak election bet.

possessed the magic of her being. For the first time in his life Owen felt himself mastered by the sleep fascination of a woman. "It is, indeed," he said breathlessly. "It is, indeed, to do!"
 "I will tell you tonight—at the ball," she answered. "Now you must run away."
 He arose instantly, but as she stood before him, her eyes shining, her hands sharply caught her in a crushing embrace and kissed her passionately.
 She protested with a little cry and a struggle, but too violent to damage her confidence. His direct touch to her throat was something of astonishment in his eyes astonishment at himself.
 "You are—the only woman in the world—who has mastered me," that he gasped.
 "Go, go," she pleaded.
 "But you are angry? You break our agreement?"
 "No, but I am overcome. I shall meet you to-night!"
